

Kimberley Jiyigas (Birds) is a collective of Indigenous women whose heritage links them personally to the Kimberley region. Together, we join our talents, skills, passions, experience and networks to begin building a movement from which we can manage change, promote our voices and culture whilst working towards greater reconciliation within Australia.

A movement of Kimberley Indigenous Women Influencing Social Change.

Our Services

Cultural and Community Intelligence – providing a diverse set of services on cultural strategies and community protocols.

Conferencing and Events - offering event and project management services, including supply of Guest Speakers and facilitation of workshops and events.

Personal and Professional Development – providing services to promote personal wellbeing and professional advancement including life coaching sessions.

Business Development and Services – a range of services offered to Indigenous women in business, to support and mentor them in all aspects of their new or existing business.

Our Initiatives

The Kimberley She'ro Podcast exists to share the experiences and wisdom of our most inspirational Indigenous women and share more about the Cultural ways and history of the people of the Kimberley region, Western Australia. These personal stories are presented through our Kimberley Shero series which seeks to amplify women's voices and promote Australian Indigenous Culture through storytelling.

Maganda Makers empowers Kimberley Indigenous women to build wealth through business. Wealth in the hands of a Kimberley Indigenous woman has the power to drive transformation of households, families and communities. Maganda Makers use wealth as a metaphor to sharing as this lies at the heart of Aboriginal Culture. Maganda is the Jaru word for "Tomorrow".

Our Founder

Founder of Kimberley Jiyigas, Natasha Short, is a descendant of the Jaru people of Halls Creek, born and raised in the East Kimberley, where she lives today with her family.

Natasha has spent the past 25 years working within community development, focusing on social improvements for Indigenous people. Much of Natasha's work has been around mentoring, leadership development, organising and speaking at women's events. Natasha is committed and passionate about Aboriginal people succeeding and living purposeful and independent lives, and uses business as a way to drive social change.
